UK: AIR POLLUTION MORE HARMFUL THAN SMOKING?

The Times, 12 Jan 1994, p.7:-

Dr Jon Ayres, one of the UK's leading doctors, has announced that air pollution may be affecting more people's health than smoking. Cases of asthma are increasing, despite the air being cleaner than a decade ago. Ayres is just one of the doctors now studying the mixture of chemicals which can trigger ill health, such as car fumes and house dust.

The extended article goes on to look at the issue in greater detail, and also looks at US research on air pollution death rates, and the need for the government to invest GBP 100mn/year on new more environment friendly buses.
