Report: Smokers boost heart risk for non-smokers

AP Wire Services

There is now even more evidence that living with a smoker poses health threats to non-smokers, a researcher said yesterday.

Stanton Glantz of the University of California at San Francisco said that non-smokers sharing a home with smokers have a 20- to 30-percent higher risk of dying from heart disease than do other non-smokers.

Previous research has shown a link between passive smoking and lung disease.
